How can I find out who sent me an email from EBSCOhost?

EBSCOhost is an online electronic reference service that allows individuals to email the articles resulting from a search, to themselves or others. EBSCO has no control over individuals sending unsolicited articles to others via email. We do, however, include information to identify where the emailed article came from; this information appears at the bottom of the email. The text is shown below:

“This email was generated by a user of EBSCOhost who gained access via the [Name of the site] account. Neither EBSCO nor [name of the site] is responsible for the content of this email.”
