How do I locate full text for an article in EconLit with Full Text when the title list says I should have full text access to this journal?

EconLit with Full Text contains a certain number of records that provide early access to the full text, but which have not been fully indexed by the American Economic Association (AEA). These records include basic indexing (article name, author, source, and pagination) and full text, and allow access to full text months earlier than when the availability of full text was contingent upon the presence of full AEA records.

When these records are expanded, to include the full indexing and abstracts, a duplicate record is created until it is merged with the pre-EconLit records. If the article without full text access is from a journal which should have full text access, it is recommended that you select the Full Text limiter. This will reduce your search results set to include only the articles will full text available.

Once the records are merged all persistent links created from a pre-EconLit record will be automatically updated.
