How do I view the EBSCO Discovery Service Result List by source types?

In EBSCO Discovery Service (EDS), you can view articles from a single source type, or multiple source types, by marking the check box or boxes of a Source Type that appears to the left of your search results under the Source Types section and clicking Update.

Some examples of available source types are:

- Academic Journals
- Biographies
- Books/Monographs
- Conference Materials
- Dissertations/Theses
- Electronic Resources
- News
- Non-Print Resources
- Periodicals
- Primary Source Documents
- Reports
- Research Starters
- Reviews

Note: Source Types for catalog information are defined by values in the MARC records provided to EBSCO during catalog set-up. By default, audio and video works are identified by values in leader positions 06 and 07.
